Social Science Comprehensive Assessment Plan

Mission

Our program provides majors with a broad grounding in the Social Sciences and the equivalent of a minor in History. "Social sciences" is not a discipline, in itself, but combines many disciplines. Therefore it provides no unique skills and concepts separate from those offered by Economics, History, Psychology, Political Science, and Sociology.

In addition to the broad liberal arts education provided by each of the component disciplines, the Social Sciences Comprehensive Major with an Emphasis in History prepares social sciences instructors to teach in the public school system.

Goals and Objectives

Goals and objectives specific to each discipline are assessed as part of the assessment of the individual disciplines. The unique goal of the Social Science Comprehensive Major with an Emphasis in History is to provide a broad knowledge of Social Science and History facts and concepts.
