Military experience motivates educational pursuits

When Tim Garczynski joined the Air Force after high school, little did he know that he was setting the stage for lifelong learning and leadership. Early in his military career, Garczynski was trained as an aerospace physiology specialist and studied how flying affected the human body. In his ten years with the Air Force, he rose to Staff Sergeant and was stationed in Florida, Texas, and Okinawa, Japan, picking up valuable skills and education with each new assignment.
