Doug Stephens, Campus Planner, updated the commission members on current and future projects:

- The Dairy Center should be completed in November.
- The Ulsvik Center project has started and is planned to be ready in Spring 2008.
- The Feed Center is in progress and close to being done.
- A new well is being drilled out at the farm as the current well is contaminated.
- The parking lot for SW Hall is in progress
- The Central Heating Plant will be undergoing some updates
- The Environmental Impact Statement was presented last night on the new engineering building. All seems to be going well. Doug also showed us the current drawings for the outside of the building.
- On October 12th from 6-8:30 there will be a meeting about the Stormwater Study.
- The Baseball Field should be ready in the spring.
- The parking lots for Brigham and Glenview have been completed
- Sidewalks and the bridge from SW Hall to Glenview should be in place in the Spring. Hunt mentioned concerns about erosion control that seems to be lacking in that area. Stephens said he would walk around the area and take a look at it.
- The house at 480 Pine street was bought over the summer and will be the future location of a parking lot on the East side of campus.
- There will be upgrades to the automatic notice system.
- HVAC and lighting are planned to be upgraded at Art Hall during the summer of 2007.
- There will be work done on the floor in the track area of the PAC where there is trouble with the expansion joints and wear-and-tear of the floor under the basketball hoops.
- The Gardner Elevator is in need of repair. Hopefully work on that will start Oct 15th.

Members decided that the next meeting should be in November, for further updates and to discuss the commission’s future.
