

COURSE-TO-COURSE ARTICULATION AGREEMENT
UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN-PLATTEVILLE
FOX VALLEY TECHNICAL COLLEGE

FTC ASSOCIATE DEGREE:

Associate of Applied Science in Criminal Justice

UWP BACCALAUREATE DEGREE:

Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice

RATIONALE: The criminal justice major at the University of Wisconsin Platteville (UWP) covers the entire spectrum of the criminal justice system to include foundation courses in the functional areas of the police, courts, and corrections, as well as advanced and specialized level courses that further enhance students understanding and ability to work in the criminal justice system. Fox Valley Technical College (FTC) offers a two-year degree in criminal justice that provides student with the foundation they need to be a police officer.

City and local police agencies are increasingly requiring degrees beyond the associate's degree for entry-level law enforcement positions. For those officers currently employed without the bachelor's degree, the bachelor's of science degree in criminal justice will provide in-depth knowledge of the criminal justice system for those officers who would like to increase their likelihood of being promoted in a police department or private company, or who want to find entry level positions in state and federal agencies.

Currently UWP accepts up to 30 credits (including math and sciences) that are applied to the general education coursework. This agreement facilitates an additional transfer of credits from the Criminal Justice Degree Program at FTC to the Criminal Justice Bachelor of Science Degree at UWP.
