UW-Platteville was an easy choice due to the excellent reputation of its Distance Learning program and its convenience with my work schedule.
Criminal Justice
Delivered 100% online, UW-Platteville’s Criminal Justice programs provide the knowledge and skills needed to advance within the criminal justice profession. The programs address many facets of the field, including law, psychology, community relations, corrections, investigation, victimology, and theory.

Bachelor’s Degree
While earning your Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice, you’ll gain proficiency from courses like The Police Function, Correctional Philosophy, Juvenile Justice, Criminal Investigation, Police-Community Relations, and more. Add an optional Business Administration minor for a well-rounded criminal justice education.

Master’s Degree
You can finish your Master of Science in Criminal Justice in as little as two years. You’ll start the 30-credit program with core courses like Criminal Justice Systems, Criminology Theory, Law as Social Control, and more. Then choose electives such as Crisis Intervention Theory, Abnormal Psychology in a Dangerous World, Policing in a Democratic Society, At-Risk Youth, and more from one of the emphasis areas relevant to your career goals: Criminal Justice Theory, Criminal Justice Management, or Victim and Offender Services.

Child Advocacy Certificate
Designed to prepare you for the realities of child protection, the three-course certificate in Child Advocacy Studies is ideal for law enforcement and child protection professionals, victim witness workers, lawyers, school social workers, and treatment providers. This certificate meets the mission of the National Child Protection Training Center to end child abuse in the United States.
